Description:

Hardware Encryption Market Overview

The Hardware Encryption Market has projected an estimated USD 1356.8 Billion in 2030. The CAGR value of the market is anticipated to gain 4.60% in the forecast period between 2022 to 2030. In the information sector, hardware encryption is a critical technology. It's a method that uses advanced mathematical procedures to encrypt hardware data. In addition, hardware encryption is a method of ensuring data security. It is difficult to recover information from an encrypted hard drive. Any encrypted data on the hard disc can only be accessed by the user with the correct password and security information. Hardware encryption technology is used in a variety of advanced applications. It is feasible to block any illegal access using hardware encryption technologies. This encryption system is also beneficial to deter online threats and potential hackers, which is one of the major factors for raising the demand in the hardware encryption market. Another important market driver is the complexity of existing data security systems. This can be easily solved with this smart security solution.

Covid analysis

The covid 19 has destructive effects on plenty of global markets. Due to the pandemic, the hardware encryption market is facing several difficulties. The data security technologies are receiving less demand during this period. Plenty of software firms are focusing on other tasks. The hardware encryption market may have a declining effect due to all these factors. The deployment of the hardware encryption system is difficult during this pandemic. Implementing this technology can be sophisticated. However, the post covid 19 trends of the market look promising. The production rate and the supply of the hardware encryption device will happen smoothly. Therefore, the market has exceptional growth possibilities post the covid 19.

Hardware Encryption Market Dynamics

- Crucial market drivers

The high requirement for data security is a crucial demand driving factor for the hardware encryption market. The volume of data breaches is increasing at an exponential pace. It is enabling big companies to adopt the hardware encryption system. The hardware encryption provides access to users only with the correct password and security key. It offers considerable security to all the data of the company. Also, data breaches will continue to increase in the upcoming years.

The data storage and transformation is massive. All these factors will ultimately boost Hardware Encryption Market Demand in the forecast period. The complexity of other data security technologies is another crucial driver for the market. There are plenty of high-end technologies that provide security to data. However, they come with complex procedures. The hardware encryption technology comes with easy security deployment. These ease of deployment and high requirement for data security are the drivers that boost demand and revenue for the market. These market drivers will intensify in the forecast period.

- Market growth opportunities

The hardware encryption technology offers plenty of benefits than the software encryption technology. Further, the innovation in the hardware encryption market will be high in the forecast period. Due to this, the market growth opportunities are massive. The innovation leads to new product development and variation in the market. All these factors will fuel the demand for Hardware Encryption Industry. The increasing investments in hardware encryption are another factor that provides plenty of market growth possibilities. The high investments will lead to market expansion and more product awareness. As per the Hardware Encryption Market Analysis, the future of this market looks promising. The growth trend of the hardware encryption market is stable over the forecast period.

- The market restraints

The rise of hardware encryption technology increases the need for data centres. The well-established data centres to deploy this technology are less in several regions it is one of the crucial restraint in the market. The less number of data centres can slow down the overall adoption of hardware encryption by the end-users. The overall time required to deploy the hardware encryption system is also a restraining factor. It takes considerable time to adapt to the hardware encryption device from software encryption. These technical difficulties in the market are significant restraints. These restraints can have a declining effect on the market during the forecast period. Also, it can result in less demand and less profitability during the forecast period.

- The market challenges

The lack of standardization is a major challenge in the market. Various market players use differentiated procedures to deploy this technology. The customer experience may vary due to this factor. The lack of standardization in the market can affect the market demand in the long run. The hardware encryption can work efficiently with cloud computing. The less adoption of cloud computing in some regions can affect the operations of hardware encryption. It is another factor that affects the overall hardware encryption market in the forecast period. The entry of new market players is another significant market challenge. The new entry of key players will cause more standardization issue in the market.

- Cumulative growth analysis

The hardware encryption market growth remains stable during the forecast period. There is plenty of demand driving factors in the market. The demand from giant tech companies is a crucial market driver. Also, the increasing requirement for data security is continuously boosting the market revenue. Few factors can restrict the overall market growth in the forecast period. The transformation from software encryption devices to hardware encryption is a complex process. Further, the lack of standardization is a crucial challenge in the market. However, the market restraints will have a slight effect on the market. Moreover, the key players in the market are taking plenty of measures to develop the product and to expand the market. These factors show that the growth trend of the market remains positive.

- Value chain analysis

North America holds the maximum Hardware Encryption Market Share. The number of hardware encryption manufacturers is high in the region. Also, the high need for data security is massive in several sectors. The key players of the market are powerful with plenty of demand and growth prospects. Hardware encryption is required in the military, automotive, healthcare and education sector. All these factors are the crucial drivers of the market. Further, awareness about hardware encryption is high in this region. There will be the highest hardware encryption market growth rate recorded in this region. Further, there are plenty of market growth opportunities that open new ways to expand the market.

Hardware Encryption Market Segment Overview

By algorithm

- Advanced encryption
- Shamir, rivets and Adelman encryption

By architecture

- The field programmed gateway array
- The amplification specific circuit

By product

- Hard disk
- External hard disk
- Internal hard disk
- Solid-state drives

By application

- Aerospace and defence
- Consumer electronics
- Healthcare
- Automotive and transportation
- Government and public utilities

By end-users

- Residential
- Commercial
- military
- Industrial

By region

- North America
- Europe
- Asia Pacific

Hardware Encryption Market Regional Analysis

The hardware encryption market is fragmented into Asia Pacific, Europe and North America. Also, North America will outgrow the other markets in the forecast period. The high technological developments are the prime cause for high demand. Further, the high requirement to protect data and prevent data breaches is driving the demand. Also, there are plenty of growth opportunities in this region. US and Canada are the key contributors to the market. The US is implementing the hardware encryption technology in the military sector. This opens new opportunities for the overall market in North America. Further, North America will witness the highest profitability in the forecast year 2030. All these factors will continuously stir revenue for the Global Hardware Encryption Market.

The Asia Pacific is the fastest growing hardware encryption market. The massive demand from tech companies is the crucial factor for high demand. Further, the data breach issues are higher in this region. Due to this, the deployment of the hardware encryption system is happening on a wide scale. Europe is the next region with massive hardware encryption demand.

Hardware Encryption Market Competitive Landscape

The key players of the market are taking plenty of measures to develop the market in Europe. Product development and market expansion measures are happening in this region. Also, Europe will record the highest demand driving hardware encryption in the forecast period.

The key players of the hardware encryption market are

- Thales e-security
- Samsung Electronics
- Win Magic Inc
- Toshiba Corporation
- NetApp
- Western Digital Corporation
- Maxim Integrated Products, Inc
- Kingston Technology
- Kanguru Solutions

Recent Developments

August 2019

Western Digital launched the Ultrastar DC SN640 family optimized for extreme performance in mixed-workload applications. It is applied for SQL Server, Virtual desktops, MySQL virtual desktops, and other forms of business-critical workloads using hyper-converged infrastructures such as VMware vSAN and Microsoft Azure Stack HCI solutions. Compared to its predecessor, this encryption provides twice the performance in sequential writes. This new series supports a variety of system configurations and comes in three form factors with a wide range of capacity points.

January 2022

Samsung Electronics introduced its new fingerprint security IC S3B512C with enhanced security features. This enhanced solution is EMVCo certified for Common Criteria Evaluation Assurance Level (CC EAL) 6+. This aligns with Mastercard's latest Biometric Evaluation plan Summary specifications used in the biometric payment cards.
